SUBJECT: Congratulations on agreeing to host one of our elves!

I would like to introduce you to the elf that decided to visit your family this year. Normally our elves will arrive around Thanksgiving and will stay with your family until Christmas morning when all my elves return to the North Pole with me. Please note that sometimes my elves may be late as they sometimes like to take side trips as they journey from the North Pole to your home.

Since most families like to name their elf, please feel free to give your personal elf their own unique name. Elves are just little people and each one is very unique just like you, so come up with a suitable name for your elf.

Normally, elves will just sit around and watch all the good deeds that you are doing. Hearing about these creates energy for the North Pole elves who are building all the toys.

Elves are shy around big people and may not move, but do not be surprised if they explore your home at night. They may even hide from you in hopes that you will find them.

Just like people, some elves will even make messes. Please note: since you agreed to host an elf, you need to help mom or dad clean up the mess that your elf makes. Of course your helping will make Santa proud and my elves will report that to the North Pole when they check in!

If you have questions you can always write a note to your elf. Do not be surprised if your elf finds a computer at your home and writes you back.

So enjoy your guest and I will see you on Christmas morning!
